

Kennett Consolidated School District

State Funding and Local Taxes

In 2011, Governor Corbett cut $1 billion from state education funding and dismantled the funding formula, making Pennsylvania one of only 3 states that do not use a formula.

Now, school districts are receiving less state funding.

With the amount of state aid received for the 2013-14 academic year, Kennett Consolidated School District is still:

- ◆ More than $5 million away from 2013-14 adequacy targets
- ◆ More than $4 million away from restoring funds back to 2010-2011 levels

State Aid in Kennett Consolidated

To cope with state budget cuts, the burden of funding schools has fallen on local communities. During the past three years, many school districts have raised property taxes at least once.

Chester County School Districts Property Tax Increase 2010-2013

Kennett Consolidated School District has increased property taxes more than 10% in the past 3 years, the second highest increase in Chester County.

Student Performance Facts

* Kennett Consolidated has nearly a 30% achievement gap in reading for Hispanic and economically disadvantaged students.

* Kennett Consolidated graduates 90% of its students, the 4th lowest graduation rate in Chester County.

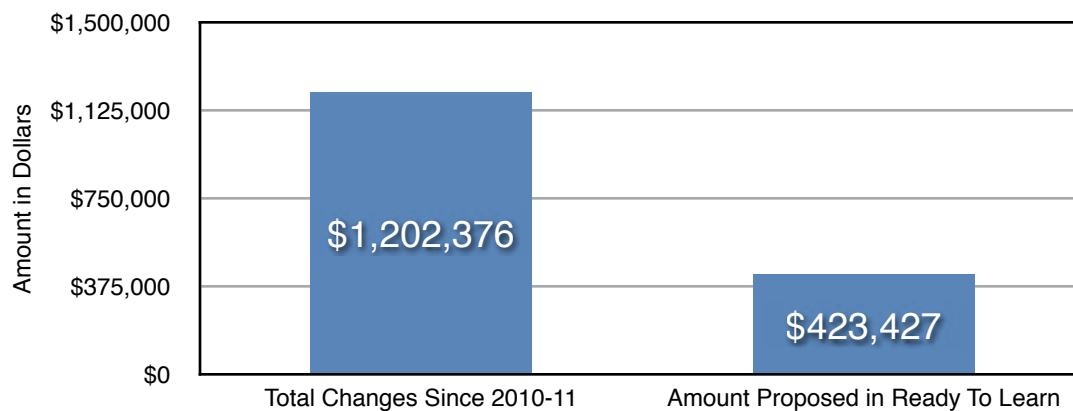

* In the 2011-12 academic year, Kennett Consolidated had fewer than 80% of students performing at or above grade level in both math and reading.

What does the future hold for Kennett Consolidated School District?

The Governor's 2014-15 budget proposal calls for $241 million to restore funding for Pennsylvania's schools, most of which will be available through the newly created Ready to Learn Block Grant. If the Governor's proposal is adopted by legislature, next year districts will be $440 million short in state funds compared to 2010-11 funding levels.

Even with the Governor's proposed Ready to Learn Block Grant for the 2014-15 academic year, the Kennett Consolidated School District is still over $600 thousand short in state aid compared to 2010-11 funding levels.
