

equity in literacy education

early literacy

poverty

Literacy from Birth to 8th:

A Talk and Discussion on Promoting Best Practices in Philadelphia with Early Literacy Expert Nell Duke

Nell Duke, Ed.D., is an internationally recognized expert on early literacy development, particularly among children living in poverty. A professor of literacy, language, and culture at the University of Michigan, her work focuses on development of informational reading and writing in young children, comprehension development and instruction in early schooling, and issues of equity in literacy education.

Who should come:

Early childhood practitioners,
Read by 4! partners,
parents and teachers

Tuesday, July 7th, 2015
10:00 am to 12:00 pm

United Way Building*
1709 Ben Franklin Parkway

FREE but you must preregister:
<http://early-literacy-nell-duke-philly-july7.eventbrite.com>

PCCY public citizens for children + youth

* Located a block from Suburban Station.
If driving, discount parking is available ($8/day) at the Sheraton Hotel. Enter on 16th between Race and Vine. Ask front desk at United Way for a pass.

literacy for the youngest learner research based practice K-8

beyond bedtime stories

parent guide to promoting reading and writing

developing powerful readers

effective literacy instruction